FOREWORD

For my birthday in December 1963, my mother and maternal grandmother presented me with the genealogies of three of my grandparents. The one that was missing was that of my grandfather, Benjamin Bradshaw Barmore. I couldn't resist the idea of compiling a genealogy for this missing side.

I first contacted my mother to find out if anyone else was working on a Barmore Genealogy and she knew of no one except Paul R. Barmore and JoEllen Mann who had worked out a chart. I looked at this chart, and was amazed. I didn't realize Grandfather had so many brothers and sisters.

With this chart and an outline of the Cahoon family, sent to my mother by Ruth (Cahoon) Dietmeier in 1947, I had a pretty good start. The next step was the questionnaire which everyone filled out. All information, with the exception of the section on Nathaniel, has been drawn completely from these questionnaires. Every attempt has been made to confirm names and dates where it appeared incomplete or confusing. I am satisfied that there are a minimum of errors.

However, I do not classify this work as a true genealogy, as no attempt at biography or ancestors has been attempted, with the only exception being the section on Nathaniel. I've already begun my search for the ancestors of Nathaniel and Susanna, but since this may take years to complete, I felt it best to get this information out to the family before it becomes out-dated.

It would be impossible for me to individually thank each and every person who helped so much in compiling the data, as every one mentioned in this book did his part, but several people have done much more than their share, namely Ruth Chambers who collected and checked the Chambers branch, and Lois Elliott who did the same for the Gift branch. They were of tremendous help.

It is my hope that each member of the family will find this book interesting and more than that, HELPFUL. I have enjoyed preparing it.

AN EXPLANATION

Numbering System: In this book, I have used a system which seems to me to be the most logical and useful. I think it would be easiest to explain by using an example. I shall take 14313, Deborah Ellen Cahoon (1964-), the youngest member of the family at this writing. The number of digits indicates the generation, and since there are five, this means that Debbie is of the 5th generation, and that she is the great-great-great-granddaughter of Nathaniel. To find her parents, simply remove the last digit (3) and you get the number 1431, the number of her parents, Larry and Betty Cahoon. Remove another number and you get 143, the number of her grand-parents, Gilbert and Faye Cahoon.

Or, to explain it another way, by reading the number 14313 backwards from right to left, Deborah is the 3rd child of Larry, who is the 1st child of Gilbert, who is the 3rd child of Jennings, who is the 4th child of Salome, who is the 1st child of Nathaniel and Susanna Barmore.

Another reason I like this numbering system is that you can tell at a glance which branch a person comes from. Any number that starts with a 1 is a Cahoon, 3 is a Chambers, 9 is a Gift, etc.

Nathaniel

Nathaniel was born on February 11, 1828 in Center, Green County, Pennsylvania. In 1841, when he was thirteen, he moved with his parents to Athens, Ohio where they lived for seven years. From there, the family moved to Green County, Wisconsin in 1848. They lived for one year in Twin Grove, then moved to Clarno township. It was here in Clarno that Nathaniel met and married Susanna Stair. He was married in the home of his oldest brother, Alfred, in Jefferson township, Green County, Wisconsin on December 9, 1851. After their marriage, they lived one year in Twin Grove, then moved onto their farm just across the state line in Pleasant Hill, Illinois where they lived until Nathaniel's death.

According to the obituary notice of his death, "Nathaniel died on Friday morning, December 15, 1911, at 1 o'clock, aged 82 years, 10 months, and 4 days, death being due to the infirmities of old age.

"He was converted at the age of 31 years and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church of which he was a faithful and devoted member.

"The funeral was held Sunday morning (December 17) at the Pleasant Hill Church, Rev. H.L. Brett, officiating. The interment took place at Rock Grove."

(The following are excerpts from letters written by Elsie Cahoon Meier in 1964.)

"The farm which Uncle Ben (Benjamin Bradshaw) owned back here was the original Barmore homestead. I wish I knew more about when Grandpa (Nathaniel) got it from the Government and for how much. I also wish I knew whether they built the first house on it, but I do not know. I know that Grandpa built the barn and house which are still on and in good condition. It must have been quite a nice home in its day. Aunt Jennie Raymer was the first child born in the new house. After Uncle Ben and Aunt Addie were married, Grandpa built a kitchen, pantry, and summer kitchen onto the East side and they retired there. After their marriage, Uncle Ben and Aunt Addie lived there and Jennings, Lawrence, and Merrill were born there. I used to go over and help Aunt Addie mind them sometimes. I think Mark was born after we moved up on the hill.

"I have an idea that the double window was really something in those days, as we always talked of Grandma's 'Bay Window' as something special. There is a summer shanty at the back of the house and on top of that is Grandpa's old dinner bell.

"Grandma told me that her three brothers were terribly opposed to her marrying Grandpa, just because he was so homely. I never thought of him in that way, as he was a Grandfather to be proud of. I have his spelling book. It is falling apart with age. Much of the book is filled with verses from our book of all books, The Bible.

"I think Grandma had very little schooling, and I do not remember that I ever saw any of her writing, but Grandpa was a crack speller in his day and a very well-read man. He loved to read, especially his beloved 'Christian Advocate' (Methodist). They gave the land for the church building on the corner of the old homestead.

"What a wonderful family they were. Grandpa and Grandma Barmore's first concern was for the church, and while they prospered with the times, I don't think they ever put the thought of money first."

Susanna

Susanna was born November 18, 1831 in Tippecanoe County, Indiana. She came from Virginia to Clarno township, Green County, Wisconsin in 1835 with her parents. She was then four years old. Her mother, Elizabeth, died of consumption in the spring of 1836, and was the first death in the town of Clarno.¹ After her mother's death, her father took the family back to Virginia for one year, and in 1837 they again came to Clarno where she grew up.

Her father was one of the first settlers of Green County and took up, as a homestead, the farm known (in 1901) as the Jacob Karlen farm about one mile north of Oneco, on the state line.²

Elsie Meier relates the following incidents, "Grandma Barmore used to tell me how, when they first came to Wisconsin from Virginia, they had Indians. Her father had such a poor shoestring, and an Indian went and cut a lace off a skin they had in the wigwam. Another time, he saw them cook a bird or chicken, and they just wrapped it up, feathers and all, and put it in the pot."³

The living conditions and privations of the early settlers are well described in the book History of Green County, Wisconsin by Bingham. It would be entirely conceivable that these accounts might describe the conditions under which the Stair family lived.

"In the fall of 1836, David Bridge of Ohio built on section twenty what was called the prettiest cabin this side of Chicago. Settlers had so much to do, and it took so much time to get lumber and puncheons, that in all the towns some families lived at first in doorless and floorless houses. Doors were the only things for which lumber was provided. It was lumber that Mr. Hawthorne had brought from Galena to make a cabin door that made the first coffin in the county - Mr. Patterson's. In Mr. Bridge's cabin, a puncheon floor was made in the ends of the room, and there the beds were made. At first, Mr. David Bridge and his father, Mr. John Bridge, slept at one end of the room, and Mr. Jeremiah Bridge and his family slept in the other end. A homeless family asked for and obtained leave to sleep on the ground in the middle of the room, but rattlesnakes that raised their heads there were inhospitably cut off, ere they were fairly out of their holes.

"Soon after his arrival here, John Chryst constructed a 'horse mill' for grinding buckwheat. Crops of all kinds were raised in 1837-38. One man raised great quantities of oats, which he sold for forty-four cents a bushel. Another raised potatoes, four hundred bushels an acre. Some good things were lacking yet. There were hardly any stoves, and the ever-praised old fireplace did little more than burn those who sat near it. In the spring, after his first winter here, Jeremiah Bridge laid a floor in his cabin, and found that the ground on which his family had lived all winter was frozen to the depth of eight inches. One day when Mrs. Chadwick set aside her wheel to get dinner she found her fire had gone out. Friction matches had never been seen in the county at that time, and J.M. Chadwick, then a lad of fifteen, was sent three-quarters of a mile for fire. Going home, he was obliged, in order to keep fire, to stop frequently to gather up and burn dry twigs and barks, so that his return was delayed until the family was in a very unusual state of mind and appetite.

"In 1838, Mr. LyBrand had matches to sell at twenty-five cents a bunch (a bunch consisting of about twenty-five matches glued together at one end), but they were of so poor a quality as to be of little use. Those were the days of borrowing and lending. Mr. Daniel Bridge once went nine miles to borrow a brush scythe, and was told that he might get it from another borrower who had taken it nine miles farther. Everybody who had an axe to grind, though he lived as far away as Orangeville, went to Mr. Bridge's.

"In 1841 a school house was built on Mr. Rittenhouse's farm, and in this the first teacher was Wm. Jones. Mr. Chadwick, fearing his children might lose their way on the prairie, ran a furrow from his house to the school house with his breaking plow, which was drawn by five yoke of oxen and which made a furrow twenty inches wide. On this furrow the children walked until the snakes, pleased with the soft ground, took up their abode there, and then they walked in the high grass by its side."⁴

"A lady who moved to Clarno in 1838 gives a glimpse of things as seen through a housekeeper's eyes: We, like most families, brought flour, meat, and a little money with us. When our money was gone, we did without things. Flour was $13 (it had been $16), and pork $30 a barrel. Calico was fifty cents a yard, and other kinds of cloth were proportionally high; but in many families the men wore buckskin clothes, tanning the skins themselves, and the women were so industrious with the spinning-wheel and the loom that the cloth of the family cost only what was paid for the warp of its linsey. I bought some soft soap and paid a dollar a gallon. The next year I made soap to sell, but it wasn't worth much then. At first butter was fifty cents a pound, and after a while we had to do without butter. We had no money, and nothing to barter. By the time we had cows, butter was down to a shilling. That was the way with everything; so high we couldn't buy it the first year, so plenty we couldn't sell it the next."⁵

Index of Family Addresses

INDEX OF ADDRESSES

In the following list of addresses, I have listed only the older members of the family. All younger children and members that I know are living at home are not listed. As in the rest of this book, the member of the family is listed first.

Street addresses can be found by looking up that person in the statistical section of the book.
